Evidence-based Practice: from Health to Social Well-being

17 April 2024

Aims of the conference

- To bring together academics, researchers and practitioners in order to promote practical interprofessional collaboration of evidence-based practice.
- To share own experiences, reliable evidences and new ideas.

In our practical activities, we are always innovators, discovering one or another solution for improving practice.

Today, we are challenged to provide evidence-based practice using timely and meaningful solutions in diverse populations and settings. In addition, this is the time to adopt and apply smart technologies created by the 4.0 industrial revolution and provide services while adapting to these technologies. Evidence-based innovation is not limited to traditional practice, but opens up perspectives for innovative thinking and exploration of new possibilities. Let's find out how innovation can turn into actual results.
